A Token of Esteem.

As the train stopped at a station about thirty miles west of Indianapolis we noticed an unusually large crowd on the depot platform, and it was evident that speech-making had been indulged in and that somebody of note was taking his departure, says a writer in the New York Sun. We soon discovered that this person was a certain Col. Blank, who came into the car with a package under his arm, and whose cheeks were wet with farewell tears. He called "Good by!" a score of times from the window, and as the train finally rolled on he blew his nose, wiped his eyes and turned to us with:

"Gentlemen, it touches the heartstrings to part with old friends and neighbors."

"You are saying farewell, then?"

"Yes. I am going to Indianapolis to reside. The field here is too limited, as I have discovered after ten years' residence."

"Well, it is certainly pleasant to part from friends in the way you have."

"Indeed it is! Over 200 of the best people in town came down to see me off, and the president of the bank made a beautiful speech, wished me every success, and all that, and then handed me this as a token of respect and esteem."

"Ah! Made you a present, eh? Evidently something nice?"

"Bound to be," replied the colonel, as he took a package from the seat.

"Perhaps you don't want to reveal the contents here?"

Oh, I have no objections. We'll undo it and see what they have given me."

He carefully untied the string and removed the several papers which wrapped the precious memento, and lo! there was exposed to our gaze a—sponge! Yes, sir; a great big sponge, which never cost less than a dollar! We pressed forward to see it, and the colonel turned red and white by turns, bit his lips, and bobbed about on the seat, and as we held our breaths he burst out with:

"Gentlemen, heartstrings be blowed! The onery, thieving, loafing, lying crowd have gone and heaped a deadly insult upon me, and the next 250 years of my life shall be devoted to wading in human blood clear up to the top vest button!"

Just the Same.

Dreadful things of thee are spoken,
Thomas Brackett Reed of Maine;
Ancient precedent thou'st broken,
Loud the Democrats complain.
Every Bourbon's tongue is acid;
Hot and furious they declaim;
But, with mien serene and placid,
Thou dost count them just the same.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Pure Waste of Words.

A certain young Chicago lawyer—it is just as well not to give his name—was trying a case in a justice's court, a few years ago. He was deeply interested in the case and most anxious to win it, so he put in a good deal of time looking up decisions bearing on the point, and when he made his speech cited case after case. He made the strongest speech he knew how to make, and the justice listened to it all intently.

When the young lawyer finished the justice leaned back in his chair and appeared to be considering the matter.

"We ought to win this," said the lawyer to his client, "but I'm a little afraid."

"You needn't be," replied the client, calmly. "You needn't have worked so hard, either. I saw him this morning. He wanted fifty, but finally took twenty-five."

The justice, by the way, is not on the bench now.—Chicago Tribune.

How to Raise Boys.

Mrs. Hobbs (parent of an infant terror, and several half-grown terrors)—Well, Mr. Hobbs, since you are so dissatisfied with the way I am raising our darling Willie, maybe you would condescend to inform me how you would raise boys.

Hobbs—Certainly; every boy ought to be kept in a hogshead and fed through the bung-hole until he is twelve years of age.

"And when he reaches the age of twelve?"

"Stop up the bung-hole."

A Capital Answer.

Teacher (to dull boy of the class)—Which New England State has two capitals?

Boy—New Hampshire.

Teacher—Indeed? Name them.

Boy—Capital N and capital H.

—Harper's Bazar.

Classified.

"Isn't it a crime, judge, to loosen a swarm of bees on a fellow?"

"Not a crime. We might call it a bee-setting sin."—New York Sun.

In times like these the doctor skilled
His hopes of curing offers;
His pockets are with money filled
Drawn from the public's coughers.

—Washington Capital.

Miss Hardcash—"Oh, Papa! I was down Broadway this afternoon and I saw a diamond ring that was just too nice for anything!"

Mr. Hardcash—"That's too bad. If it had not been regarded as too nice, I should have probably purchased it for your birthday present."—Jeweller's Weekly.

"Did you go to the seance last night?" "Yes." "Did the spirits materialize?" "No; but the medium told some." "Told some what?" "Material lies."—Exchange.

She—"What do the papers mean by the Underground Electric System?"

He—"The Underground Electric System is just the reverse of the one now in use. It is a system in which it is proposed to bury the wires instead of the citizens."—Life.

Mr. Lonely Villers—(turning suddenly to Suspicious Character, who has been following him home)—"Please sir, gimme a dime to git a cup of coffee; I've just walked all the way from Albany. I don't want it to buy whisky with—indeed, I don't."

Unsuspicious Character—"Bless my soul! To think I've been shadowing a blamed old pauper for over three-quarters of a mile!"

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1890.

By a late decision in the Supreme Court of New York, a trust is made a criminal organization. The prospects for immigration from that state are becoming quite flattering.

By an agreement among the attorneys the suit for the possession of the United Brethren Publishing House has been postponed until March 18th. The case is looked to with much interest.

One of the greatest misfortunes met in the journalistic profession for some time has now befallen the London Times. Not only has it suffered defeat in the Parnell trials, paying heavy damages in every case lost, amounting, with numerous other losses, to nearly a million dollars, but it has lost its long maintained prestige, to recover which, many years will be required.

Statistics of commerce for 1889 show a marked contrast in its favor over those for the year preceding. Although the imports last year were somewhat greater than those of 1888, yet the exports were so much in excess of those of the preceding year, as to make the excess of exports over imports $116,000,000, whereas the year before it was less than four millions. As long as trade keeps in this direction, we are certain of prosperity.

Quite a number of crossings have lately been laid on Third street between the intersecting streets, by property owners and business men. The object is to bring the passing trade directly to their own stand, and thus reap the patronage of many who, having to go a great way around, would otherwise have gone to another store. These crossings not only benefit the business men by whom they are made, but also the public in general, as it does away with the necessity of street cars stopping at crossings of intersecting streets.

The filibustering Democrats in the House have found their equal in Speaker Reed. With his cool deliberating manner, exempt from all signs of excitement and uneasiness, he has quietly brought the house to order, and ready for the transaction of business. During the progress of this great discussion, in which the speaker was addressed with many threats, some even shaking their fists in his face and exhibiting other appearances of physical force, he held the filibustering party in check. The attempt of the minority to check the progress of the transaction of business will receive the rebuke of fair-minded persons of all parties, and bring praise to Mr. Reed for his manliness in reducing the house to order.

Over a million acres of land, of the Sioux reservation have been bought by the government and will soon be open to settlers. The land is a tract formerly used as a hunting ground, but all animals of any size becoming extinct in it, the government purchased it, still leaving three hundred and twenty acres to each family, and an appropriation of all utensils necessary for the proper cultivation of the said land. The Sioux tribe having so great territory, were little influenced by the surrounding civilization—much less than the neighboring tribes—and have of late been quite troublesome. The intention of the government is to make them as little subjective as possible to their now powerful chiefs, and more to the government of the United States.

The charter of the Louisiana State Lottery Company expires next May, which, when the motion for its renewal is presented, will probably produce considerable excitement in the next Louisiana legislature. When the charter was granted some years ago, the company agreed to establish an institution of learning, which they did, and support it. The company became so prosperous during its short existence that now it proposes to pay off the whole state debt, if only a charter be granted them—so lucrative an income have they drawn from the people! This is probably their last chance, as their attempt in the North Dakota legislature, although they succeeded in bribing it, was disclosed, and the uprising so great both in Dakota and abroad, that the attempt will surely prove a failure. Louisiana must decide the future existence of this wonderful company—wonderful for its prosperity and success in defrauding poor people throughout the whole Union. It will surely be no credit to Louisiana to grant this company a licence to do evil solely for the purpose of extricating itself from debt.

Mr. Caylor, of the firm of Vance & Caylor, has about recovered from the measles. The friends of Mr. Joe Vance are congratulating him on his escape from them.

The residents of Hawthorne street complain of a superabundance of midnight serenaders. Some of our merchants might find it a profitable investment to lay in a stock of firearms.

Mr. W. J. Ellis and family, of West Amity street, and Mr. J. McClure, of North Broadway, went to Arcanum, Thursday morning, to attend the funeral of Mr. John Smith, of that place, who died Tuesday morning, and was interred in Abbottsville cemetery, Thursday morning.

One day last week, when she attempted to light her gasoline stove, Mrs. Elmer Weaver, of South Hawthorne street, narrowly escaped from what might have been a dangerous accident. When she lighted the stove, she noticed it did not work properly, and fearing an explosion, dragged it from the house. When she had just succeeded in getting it out, the reservoir exploded. She was not hurt, nor was anything else, save the stove.

Harry Carte, the young man who was lately visiting Mr. H. Ruse, on West Third street, met with a very serious accident last Saturday night. It appears that young Carte, with a number of friends, had driven to church in Trotwood. After church was over they got into their buggies and started for home. Mr. Carte, who was riding in a small dog-cart alone, requested that he be allowed to drive ahead, as his horse, having stood during church, had become quite lively. That was the last seen of him until one of the party noticed, after driving some distance, a dog cart lying by the road; and then a man was noticed lying upon his face in the mud. The young men jumped out and found it to be Harry Carte. He was covered with mud, and unconscious. Twenty-four hours elapsed before he became conscious, and yet suffers from the fall. It is supposed that the horse attempted to run away, and in making a sudden turn in the road leading to the house, upturned the cart.

Messrs. George Riley, George and Arthur Hoover, and John Troup took a short visit, on business, we are told, to Cincinnati, this week. In some way falling in with misfortune, they decided to boycott the railroads, and foot it back.

Three boys, Henry Shoemaker, John Norris and Charlie Steiner, were arrested in the West End last Tuesday, and when brought before Mayor Crawford, Wednesday morning, were fined $7.55 apiece for shooting within city limits with flobert rifles.

Hiram Strong post gave its first public camp-fire Thursday night in their new Gunckle Hall. A number of interesting addresses were delivered and an excellent duet, entitled "Moonlight on the Rhine," was rendered by Miss Ada Ebert and Mr. William Surface. All present enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

Friday afternoon, as several young ladies from the Seventh district school were on their way home, a young "country yap," evidently, suddenly approached from behind unbeknownst to the young ladies, and without giving any notice of his presence or desire to pass, rudely pushed one against the fence and the others into the gutter, and made his passage. After a short exchange of opinions concerning modern manners, the man walked on.

Last Monday notice was sent to Ike Hale, of the S. P. C. A. that a party of emigrants had camped on King street. Hale came over, and found the crowd as he was informed, poor and filthy, with several horses, like themselves, of the appearance of a long fast, and badly crippled. Two of the horses were ordered to be killed, to put them out of misery—and death would probably not have been worse for the rest. The men claim they are from western Indiana, and are on their way to relatives residing near Springfield, Clark County, Ohio. After putting the party in as good shape as possible, they were allowed to resume their journey. It was a miserable looking set all around.

CITY NEWS.

One of the most prominent events of the week in journalistic circles was the marriage of Mr. Ed. B. Grimes and Miss Minnie Ohmer. The newly married couple have started on an extended wedding tour through the south, from which they expect to make their return in about a month.

A company has been incorporated, to be known as the "Dayton Ice and Cold Storage Company." It is their object to manufacture ice, and to rent space in their building, which will be kept at a very low temperature. For the purpose of their manufacturing they are erecting a large building near the canal. They have contracted with a Cincinnati firm for two ice machines, with a capacity of thirty and fifty tons daily respectfully. By this artificial process of manufacturing ice, the water is first filtered through a charcoal bed, and then distilled, rendering it free from all impurities. Then it is poured into cans and placed in the freezing apparatus, which is brought to an exceedingly low temperature by what is known as the ammonia gas process. The gas is first com-

GENERAL NEWS.

The President, on Monday, signed the proclamation opening the Sioux Reservation in South Dakota. He also issued an order establishing land offices at Pierre and Chamberlain.

Attorney-General Miller has decided to instruct the United States district attorney at New Orleans to bring suit against the directors of the Southern Exposition held in that city in 1884—5 for an unpaid balance of $700,000 of the $1,500,000 loaned by the government. The directors are among the most influential and wealthy men of the city—bank presidents, merchants, and commission men, worth together $5,000,000 or $6,000,000—so that if judgments be obtained the money can be collected.

John Graham, charged with jury bridging in the Cronin case, did not appear in court and his bonds for $15,000, with F. H. Trude and W. P. Whelan as sureties was forfeited.

The excitement over the lottery bill claimed to be in the interest of the Louisiana Lottery Company, reached its climax February 10 in the House of North Dakota, when further consideration of it was indefinitely postponed.

Albert P. Miller, colored pastor of Dixwell Avenue Congregational church at New Haven, N. Y. was awarded $500 damages against an Albany steamboat captain for discriminating against him on account of his color.

This shows its shape and average size. Its color is brightest crimson, very handsome and showy and so firm as to keep several days after gathered. In quality it is luscious, the plant a strong grower with a perfect blossom, entirely exempt from disease and an abundant yielder; but its great value is in its remarkable lateness—lasting long after all others have disappeared and extending the Strawberry season to two months—and the fact that it yields a crop of its beautiful, mammoth berries the season the plants are planted. Morbidity Curiosity.

A page in the Memoirs of Victor Hugo relates a story told by Monsieur Sanson, the chief executioner of France in 1846, which illustrates the extent to which idle curiosity may sometimes be carried. A good many people, chiefly English, used to come to Monsieur Sanson and asked to be shown the guillotine at work: and, when the request was accompanied by a sufficient fee, the terrible machine was generally set at work guillotining bundles of hay.

One day an English family, consisting of father, mother and three young girls, pretty, blonde and rosy, called to see the guillotine. Monsieur Sanson put it in operation, and explained all the shocking details of the workings of the machine and the preparations which the condemned persons are required to go through. Presently the youngest of the three girls turned timidly to the executioner.

"Monsieur Sanson?" she said.

"What, mademoiselle?"

"What is done when a condemned man is quite ready? How is he placed in the machine?"

The executioner told her.

"Well," said the young girl, "I wish you would put me into the guillotine that way!"

Sanson appealed to her parents.

"Oh, well," they said, "she wishes it very much—better gratify her."

Sanson, quite against his inclination, seated the young girl in the chair of the condemned, bound her hands and feet, and buckled upon her the harness which holds the criminal in place. This, he supposed, would be quite enough.

"Oh, there's something else," she said.

Sanson then had the knife of guillotine raised and placed the English girl in the dreadful lumette. Then he put upon her head and neck the hood, and put the basket in its place. Whereupon, greatly to the executioner's relief, the young girl declared she had experienced enough, and was released.

In telling the story to Victor Hugo, Monsieur Sanson said, "I quite expected, when I had finished the last preparation, to hear her say, 'Oh, there's something else; let the knife fall!'"

If, by any accident, the knife had fallen, the rebuke to an idle and morbid curiosity would have been instant, though unduly severe.

If you should happen to want your ears pinched, just pinch the baby.—Texas Sittings.

If a young woman's disposition is gunpowder, the sparks should be kept away from her.—New York Ledger.
